

Mrs Halima EL HATMI (born in 1970) is a Engineering Associate Professor in food science and technology and a Head of of agri-food Department: Biological Engineering specialty, at the Higher Institute of Applied Biology of Medenine (ISBAM), University of Gabes-Tunisia. Researcher at the Laboratory of Livestock and Wildlife at the Arid Land Institute (IRA), Medenine, Tunisia. She has 26 years experience in research, teaching and community services. She specializes in food technology especially camel and goat milk are the main area of his research interest. Halima EL HATMI highlighted that camel milk proteins and peptides possesses biological activities. Besides, Halima EL HATMI developed products enriched in bioactive peptides based on camel milk fermentation by proteolytic lactic acid bacteria. She published several scientific papers in national and international journals and communication papers (over 50).